WHY NESTED?

Nested compares credit given to customers to credit offered by vendors. Nested helps businesses grasp the obvious pattern of cash inflows and outflows to avoid a situation in which the more sales made, the less liquid cash.

Nestled helps control and manage budget. Operational expenses may occasionally surpass the budgeted amount. Improve your operational management by constantly updating the budget in real time.

Nested makes the gross margin rate more visible. Is a certain customer or product to account for low profitability?

Nested enables you to see the organization's entire cash flow. Many companies have high sales but are unsure where the money is going. Is this a one-time occurrence? Is it because the company's expenses are currently larger than its income, or is it a long-term issue that the company has never noticed?

Nested visualizes the average product sales time. Nested helps businesses better manage their inventory by allowing them to analyze the list of remaining inventory to see whether items have a longer selling time or if slow selling is the problem.
